Administration on Thursday released a monthly update on the

country's oil and gas resources. This is the eighth consecutive month of reports that show the U.S. at an all-time high of crude oil production. As oil production increases in the U.S., drilling is on the rise. As of the end of last month, the agency's data indicated that the U.S. had drilled a record 8.2 million deep wells in the first quarter this year, according to the EIA. That's up 5.8 percent from the same period last year, which had itself been a record high. The U.S. also reached another record for oil production on March 31, at the end of last month. The country's output surged by 2.1 million barrels a day in the first quarter. The increase over the same period in 2015 was more modest, at 620,000 barrels a day. That's still significant, but oil producers were still able to meet growing demand. Big increases While drilling activity increases, gas production remains stagnant. Total gas production grew by only 7 percent year-over-year in the first quarter, even as domestic production rose substantially. The agency projects that U.S. oil production will peak this year at a yearly rate of 9.4 million barrels a day and that gas production will drop to a yearly rate of 3.9 trillion cubic feet in 2019. The EIA's weekly report on U.S. oil and gas production is published on Thursday. The US produced 11,312,000 barrels per day of crude oil in November, its highest level since December 2014. The stock of uncommitted crude oil in storage was only down by 171,000 barrels. The US is in the sweet spot for crude producers. "Crude stocks are still growing, so that bodes well for prices," said Patterson. Oil prices rose on the news, which ended the eight-day losing streak that had dragged on

---

Brent futures. The global benchmark stood at $57.54 per barrel at 03:10 in London. Crude still trades

ALBANY — A troubled cleaning company is suing the city for $3.9 million, accusing it of billing its customers for electricity used to dry the sidewalk in front of the Empire State Plaza where homeless people sleep. SEE ALSO: Subpoenaed by client, Empire State Plaza fined for illegal dumping The city has ordered 85 homeless people at the plaza to vacate in favor of cleaning it, the lawsuit filed in State Supreme Court in Albany by Hoboken-based Professional Service Cleaning alleges. "PSC has been enforcing the city's orders with the help of a city-subsidized tow truck company in charge of confiscating the property of PSI's clients," according to the legal filing. "PSI's clients, including some homeless individuals, are forced to leave their property while the city pays the tow company to remove the property." The tow-truck driver company, whose services are paid for by the city, caused $10,000 in damage to the plaintiffs' vehicles, the lawsuit contends. The company is seeking $3.9 million, plus interest, for property damage, and $1 million for "future lost profits," the filing said. A judge ordered the city to hire an independent expert to do an environmental clean-up before PSI's clients could return, and city officials said they would do so. At the time, the city said PSI was in contempt of a court order and was still being billed by the city for electricity used to dry the sidewalk at the plaza. The city said it was not possible to reimburse the company for the electricity. In the lawsuit, PSI estimates the damage to its property to be $14,000 to $18,000, and says it has invoices from the city to prove it is due that amount.

Acting as the city's agent, the management company hired by the city to oversee the plaza is being sued for $30,000 in related cost for cleaning up the plaza, the filing contends. PSI has been ordered by a court to pay $270 per day for each day its clients' property was detained, which could total $30,000, the company said. PSI claims that it was never asked to pay the tow company for damages to its clients' property, and that the city is not reimbursing PSI for the electricity it is being billed for. PSI is seeking a jury trial,
