In Paris, the French Top 14 winner Toulon boosted their hopes of a Top 14 title with a 29-10 win over London Irish. In Cardiff, the Blues will hope a strong performance against the Top 14 runners-up will secure their place in the Heineken Cup final. A late try from Piers Francis gave Toulon the victory and it was a well-deserved triumph with the club having been idle since last September because of the Government's ban on all professional football. Under new boss Philippe Saint-Andre, they have had to wait until this weekend before they could boast in England. "We knew from before the bans began we were going to put in a good performance and it was great to deliver," Toulon fly-half Cyril Cordier told BBC Sport. However, Toulon coach Jean Fernandez was unable to rest his best players, especially the giant lock De Maio who is now back in full training after suffering a broken hand in October. Cordier was also back from a neck injury, meaning he had to be withdrawn at half-time. "I can't complain because the boys kept going and the pressure was on from the start," said Cordier, who crossed for a 14th-minute try. Cardiff made a bright start and went ahead when Kele Okeke's long run from centre saw him burst down the left, before passing to Drew Mitchell for the first try of his career. Mitchell, who was brought up in Wales, ran another 50 metres to score his second when he powered over, and he had a third try go begging on the stroke of half-time. Scrum-half Mike Phillips went up for a drop goal - the first drop goal of his career. Cardiff were hoping to move out of the bottom three for the first time this season. Nathan Adrian added another try after the break to leave the Welsh regions at the bottom of the table as they prepare for their Heineken Cup qualifiers.The purpose of this project is to train clinical researchers
